FROM THE TOP Jason Schafer - President

Wow, how time flies. I've enjoyed being your president this past year but now it's time to pass the torch to Tony Weber, I know he'll do a great job. I want to thank the Executive Committee and our Board of Directors for rolling up their sleeves and helping to make this a great year. From the golf outing to our awards luncheon it was a year full of professional development opportunities, networking and fun. Just because the year is over doesn't mean there aren't any AAF events to take advantage of. Our inaugural AAF Olympics gets underway on July 22 and I'll be sure to see you at our annual Golf Outing on August 5 at Quail Hollow. It's a "Wine & Tees" theme which should make for a great day. Thanks again for your support. Good luck Tony!

FROM THE EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

"Summertime and the livin' is easy," words by George Gershwin from the opera Porgy & Bess, but this summer AAF-Cleveland is quite busy with competitions galore! Our first-ever AAF Olympics get underway on July 22 with 10 sports-related and industry-related competitions taking place over two weeks. The on August 5th, our annual golf outing takes center stage at Quail Hollow Resort in Concord. Our theme this year is "Wine & Tees" so you can guess what we'll be serving. Lots of fun this summer and I hope you'll come along and enjoy some good-natured competition.

While we're all overjoyed at the return of Gina DeJesus, Amanda Berry and Michelle Knight, let's not forget about the many others who may be suffering at the hands of their deranged captors. According to TruTV's Crime Library a shocking number of 2,300 Americans go missing everyday, many of these are children. Have you hugged your kids today? If you want to help visit the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children at:

Labor Shortage

When it seems like everyone knows someone is out of work (or worse, has been out of work) how can there be a labor shortage? Especially in our industry. A recent article in The Wall Street Journal reported on the impact that Big Data is having on businesses and organizations throughout the world. The usual suspects were there – Facebook, Google and you might as well throw Amazon in as well. But then, there is also Ford, Walmart and the New York City Building Department and the Centers for Disease Control... and we won't even mention the information that Big Brother in Washington is compiling. What does that have to do with labor? August business consultants McKinsey & Company states that the biggest impediment to Big Data is a critical shortage of people who can accurately analyze and interpret that data. People who can make some sense of it all and transform raw data into plans, actions and success.

hfa Enlists Linebacker, Jousting for New LP Siding Marketing

To communicate the impact resistance of LP® SmartSide® treated engineered wood siding to both trade and consumer audiences, Hitchcock Fleming & Associates Inc. (hfa) found forceful solutions in football, jousting and an air cannon. As part of an LP SmartSide awareness and education campaign, hfa created three 60-second videos, a web landing page (www.lpsmartside.com) to house the new videos and additional social media assets. The landing page links to a new LP SmartSide consumer website that hfa created. This marketing is designed to support LP's trade customers, including builders and remodelers, for their sell-in to consumers.

BLOG ROLL

FACEBOOK HOME: IMPLICATIONS FOR BRANDS

By King Hill

The world's largest social platform, Facebook, has been built around the mission of "giving people the power to share and make the world more open and connected." Facebook is now expanding its mission to make smartphones built around your connections, not your apps. In this post, we'll get Marcus Thomas' Natalie DeGrandis's take on what this means for Brands. On April 4, Facebook announced Home, a software integration with Android that puts Facebook services front and center. A suite of Facebook apps, Home overhauls a user's smartphone device, turning it into a Facebook phone.

Today Facebook Home will be available for free download through the Google Play store for four Android phones including Samsung Galaxy S III, the Samsung Galaxy S4 and the Samsung GALAXY Note. A fifth phone, the HTC First, will also be available for purchase with the Home software already installed. Each month, Facebook will be updating the software, as well as making Home accessible for more smartphones.

FEATURES

Cover Feed

The most prominent feature of Home is the cover feed, which overhauls the mobile device's home screen and the lock screen, essentially replacing the home screen with Facebook

News Feed

Cover feed will provide updates on what friends are doing without launching an app or even unlocking the phone. Facebook has confirmed that updates and photos from Pages will be supported in cover feed.

Chat Heads

Chat heads enables users to chat with friends as they use other apps, such as email, the Internet and even Twitter. When a user receives a message from a friend, a chat head – a picture of your friend's face – will appear on the user's screen. Chat heads will appear even if users are communicating via traditional texting.

Notifications

Through Home, notifications will be more visually appealing, enticing users to re-engage with the social platform more frequently.

IMPLICATIONS FOR BRANDS

Engaging Content

According to the recent study by Flurry Analytics, a consumer spends an average of two hours, 38 minutes per day on smartphones and tablets. 80 percent of that time is spent inside apps and 18 percent specifically in the Facebook app. With Home, users will automatically launch into their cover feed, making it the primary place for engagement. This reinforces the importance of producing engaging content that is easy to interact with directly in the user's feed.

Visual Appeal

Engaging images will become more important than ever as images will dominate even more real estate in a user's cover feed. According to Facebook, the following stories will be supported by photos in a user's cover feed:

- Updating your profile photo
- Updating your cover photo
- Open graph stories with user-generated photos
- Liking a photo
- Tagging someone on a photo
- Commenting on a photo of someone
- Sharing a photo

Non-photo stories include Updating your status, Place check-in with a message, Sharing URLs by clicking the "share" button on another story, and Posting a URL from your Timeline.
